Policy: Credit for attending online trainings, sale of downloaded training materials,

This policy was approved by the board of directors on 5 February 2021

A student can only receive training credit and certificates for online classes if the student and the instructor attend all live segments in real-time. Video recordings from live classes and other resource materials may be reviewed after the class time, but digital courses which are downloaded only, without live student-instructor interaction will not be eligible for training credit.

Other trainings may be made available that comprise downloaded audio/video/written materials which students review before the class, followed by a live segment with students and instructor interacting in-person. (Note that classes presented in this way will require OBA approval before they can be offered.) Class credit will be given for these OBA-approved trainings.

Instructors who offer for sale any digital instructional materials teaching Ortho-Bionomy which don't include live segments with student-teacher interaction must first receive approval from OBA Ltd (includes ebooks, audio books, online courses, videos and any other digital or print materials) before making them available. These resources will not be eligible for training credit.
